

ABSTRACT

A storage apparatus controls primary and secondary volumes as a pair, using a logical snapshot management table that indicates in which volume data to be accessed is retained to thereby enable an immediate access to a logical frozen image.